Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-4 and 6-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Inoue (U.S. 6510153 B1).

3. Regarding claim 1, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a method for configuring a portable and/or mobile host that powers up in a foreign network to connect to the internet, comprising: creating a bootstrapping agent that works cooperatively with a M-IP home agent to allocate a temporary home address to the host; using the M-IP protocol to contact the M-IP home agent and request the bootstrapping agent to allocate the temporary home address to the host; and using the temporary home address to create a temporary tunnel between a foreign agent associated with the host and the M-IP home agent, wherein the temporary tunnel is used to communicate configuration information including a permanent home address allocated by the DHCP protocol for the host to connect to the internet.

4. Regarding claim 2, Inoue teaches (figure 4) the foreign agent id co-located wit the host.

Art Unit: 2665

5. Regarding claim 3, Inoue teaches (figure 4) the foreign agent is located on a device that is external to the host and resides in the foreign network
6. Regarding claim 4, Inoue teaches (the bootstrapping agent is arranged to assign IP addresses from an address pool of private addresses.
7. Regarding claim 6, the bootstrapping agent is arranged to assign IP addresses from an address pool of public address.
8. Regarding claim 7, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a DHCP client located on the host is used to generate messages requesting the configuration information from a DHCP server via the temporary tunnel.
9. Regarding claim 8, Inoue teaches (figures 6-7) the messages generated by the DHCP client are modified at the host to have a format consistent with a DHCP relay.
10. Regarding claim 9, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a method for enabling a mobile host without an IP home agent to connect to the internet when powering up in a foreign network, comprising: obtaining a temporary IP home address for the host from an IP address source accessible through a mobile IP home agent; establishing a transient tunnel between the mobile IP home agent and a mobile foreign agent associated with the mobile host while the foreign network, using the temporary IP home address; acquiring via the transient tunnel, configuration parameters including a permanent IP home address from a DHCP server in the home network of the host; replacing the transient tunnel with a new tunnel between the mobile IP home agent and the mobile IP foreign agent using the permanent IP home address.

Art Unit: 2665

11. Regarding claim 10, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a method for enabling configuration of a portable host device that powers up in a foreign network to communicate using the internet, comprising: communicating a temporary home address to the host from bootstrapping agent operating cooperatively with a mobile IP home agent that serves the host device when it operates in the foreign network; establishing a transient bi-directional link between the ht and the mobile IP home agent using the M-IP protocol and the temporary home address; and obtaining a permanent address from a DHCP server via the transient bi-directional communication link, wherein the permanent address use thereafter to configure the host to communicate with the internet.

12. Regarding claim 11, Inoue teaches (figure 4) additional configuration parameters are provided to the portable host via the transient bi-directional communication link.

13. Regarding claim 12, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a method for configuring a mobile host when it powers up in a foreign network, comprising: using a M-IP protocol in the host as the signaling mechanism for reaching the home network and dynamically allocating a temporary home address; and thereafter using DHCP with the temporary home address to allocate a permanent home address and other configuration state for the host.

14. Regarding claim 13, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a method for configuring a mobile host that powers up in a foreign network, comprising: setting up a temporary IP tunnel via the M-IP protocol to connect the mobile host to is home network; using an IP broadcasting protocol over the temporary IP tunnel so that the host can discover a DHCP addressing server in its home network; and using the DHCP protocol to communicate addressing and configuration information between the addressing server and the host.

15. Regarding claim 14, Inoue teaches (figures 4-7) a method for configuring the mobile host when it powers up in a foreign network without an IP home agent address, comprising: obtaining a temporary IP home address for the host from an IP address source accessible through the home server; establishing a transient tunnel between the mobile IP home server and a mobile foreign server using the temporary IP home address; ; acquiring via the transient tunnel, permanent configuration parameters including a permanent IP home address from a DHCP server in the region served by the home server; replacing the transient tunnel with a new tunnel between the home server and the foreign server using the permanent IP home address.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

16. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

17. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under

37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

18. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Inoue.

19. As mentioned above Inoue teaches all of the limitations of claims 1 and 4.

20. As for the private address taking the form10*, this is a well known format of address in private network's and It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to adapt to Inoue's system as it is well known in the art.

Conclusion

21. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Lee (U.S. 6535493 B1), Shobatake (U.S. 6654607 B1) and Turunen (U.S. 6484211 B2) are cited to show the state of the art.
